RICK O'SHAY

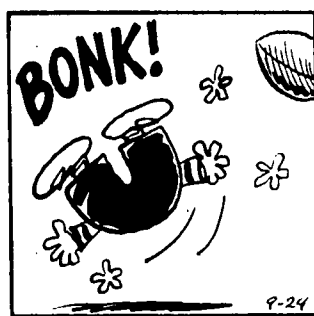

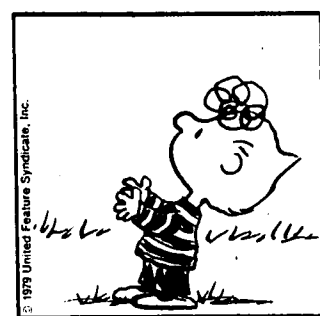

JOHNNY WONDER

A. When you take a bite of food, a watery fluid called "saliva" pours into your mouth. In fact, just looking at or smelling your favorite food can make your mouth "water," or produce saliva. Saliva is produced in special glands located in the mouth and cheeks. They are called "salivary" glands. Saliva contains water and a sticky substance called "mucin," which moistens the food so it can be swallowed easily. It also contains the enzyme which changes the starch in food into easily digested sugars. When one is not eating, saliva helps keep the mouth moist.

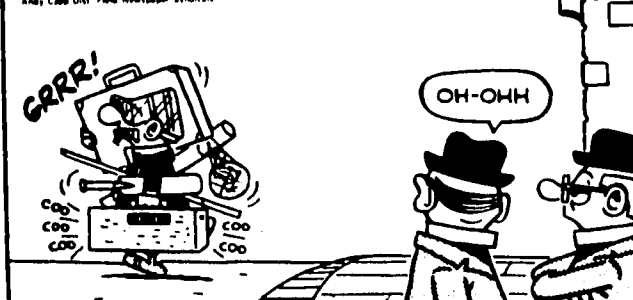

You can win a World Almanac if your question is selected. Send your name and age to JOHNNY WONDER, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 1556, Santa Cruz, CA 95061.
